DETAILED ACTION

Reissue Applications

Reissue oath or declaration

1. The reissue oath/declaration filed with this application is defective because it fails to contain a statement that all errors which are being corrected in the reissue application up to the time of filing of the oath/declaration arose without any deceptive intention on the part of the applicant. See 37 CFR 1.175 and MPEP § 1414.
2. Claims 1-34 are rejected as being based upon a defective reissue declaration under 35 U.S.C. 251 as set forth above. See 37 CFR 1.175.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Beffa, US patent No. 5,927,512, in view of Markman, US Patent No. 5,962,834.

Beffa discloses a method for sorting integrated circuit devices comprising: fabricating IC's on wafers from a wafer lot 74, the IC's fabricated on the wafers are then programmed in a program with a fuse identification (ID) unique to each IC, the fuse ID may identify a wafer lot ID, the week the IC's were fabricated, a wafer ID, a die location on the wafer, and a fabrication facility ID. It will be understood, of course; conducting a test where the fuse ID's are automatically read and stored in association with test data 82 generated in the test, the fuse ID's are read electronically, but they may also be read optically; reading the fuse ID of each IC; accessing the test data 82 to compare the read data (see figure 8 and col. 7, line 8+).

Beffa teaches that the code could be read optically, but fails to disclose or fairly suggest making each integrated circuit with respective optical identification code corresponding electronic identification information.

Markman discloses an inventory tracking and management apparatus with multi-function encoding unit comprising: an optical indicia 18; an RF code 12 for tracking items, the optical code can be attached or printed to the items. These codes are cross-reference with each other. (see col. 7, lines 10-51; col. 8, lines 8-22; and figures 2, 5).

In view of Markman's teachings, it would have been obvious for a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the system of Beffa to include both the electronic identification and optical identification for identifying the integrated circuits. Such modification would provide an alternating means for identifying the integrated circuits if one of the ID codes is damage or malfunction. Further, having both identification codes, the system could authenticate the integrated circuits without accessing the look up table by cross-referencing the optical code and the electronic code, which would expedite the verification process and would make the system more effective. Therefore, it would have been obvious an extension as taught by Beffa.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Stafford et al, US Patent No. 5,482,008, disclose an electronic animal identification system. Carney et al, US Patent No. 5,446,447, disclose an RF tagging system including RF tags with variable frequency resonant circuits.

Art Unit: 2876
